

COUNCIL DECIDES TO MEET EARLIER

City Commission Informally Determined to Hold Regular Sessions in Afternoon Hereafter.

AGREED TO HAVE NEW OFFICE

Will Meet Headquarters from Present Location Argosy Corridor of City Hall to Inspectors' Room.

The Rock Island city council will tomorrow morning consider and adopt an ordinance authorizing for a change of the meeting of the commission to 1 p.m. A special afternoon instead of 7 o'clock. This evening, the commissioners and city clerks will gather to consider the business of this meeting.

At a formal session this morning the commission voted over plans for the new and agreed to transfer the commissioners room at the city hall to the corner of the office now occupied by the building, plumbing and electric inspector. This office is on the second floor and with the new ordinance will go across next houses, the commissioners room on the third floor will be moved to this new in the office.

The commissioners agreed there enough time to have a comfortable stay agreeable to all. Some measure of interest was shown particularly interested because it will be placed in the room and the commissioners will also occupy the same office their headquarters. In case there are unusually large crowd here, seating will be present at a council meeting the commissioners will adjourn to the public rooms on the third floor.

Wheatscale Law to Pass
It is understood at the city hall that the commissioners would recommend the statewide house ordinance to the effect it might likely pass legislation in its favor amended. An order of the Iowa Board of Education recently notified City Clerk H. T. Johnson that the proposed provisions early last week on the proposed amendments had been withdrawn by the state legislature.

MRS. HILL TALKS OF IMMIGRANTS

Opens Lecture Series With Interesting Address on Nation's Gateways at First M. E. Church.

"NATION'S GATEWAY" was the theme of an address which Mrs. H. L. Hill of New York City yesterday opened the weekly series of mission talks before the Missionary Social Union, the assembly room of the First Methodist church being well filled with an interested audience.

Mrs. Hill is a speaker with a mass message, sure of her facts and well informed on the subject on which she speaks. Her address yesterday dealt with the immigrant problems, in which she said that in various geographical sections of the country it was necessary to consider different phases of the subject, the problems in one section being totally different in another.

She spoke first of the problems that arise with the people of the Orient on the Pacific coast, speaking of them from a political, economic and ethical standpoint.

It is not simply the fact that the Chinese have been excluded from the country that problems arise, but many other questions confront the authorities in dealing with these people.

Principal among these is the moral degradation of the Chinese girls, who are bought and sold as slaves and paraded out in the dives and low places along the Pacific coast.

It is a custom among the Chinese to marry their daughters to photographs, the family having never seen the man to whom she is given, and this practice becomes so great a problem that four years ago the government put a stop to it, and it is now necessary when a Chinese girl is married that she be accompanied by a government official who must sign her marriage certificate.

Even with these precautions the Chinese men still sell their wives for immoral purposes. Mrs. Hill dwelt at some length upon this problem and touched incidentally upon the Japanese land-owning problem.

The next gateway upon which she spoke was at El Paso, where the Mexicans to the south enter in so great numbers that there are now 100,000 Mexicans in southern California, Arizona and New Mexico, more than half of whom have the privilege of the ballot.

The next great gateway is New York City, where people in great numbers are poured from every country on the globe so that today the foreign-born population of New York is greater than the entire population of Chicago.

She deplored the laxness with which the ballot is given to the foreign-born population, people who are totally ignorant of the laws of the country and who vote under false nationalization papers. She made the statement that in this country there are seven states which give full franchises

GILES MAKES GREAT RUN TO CATCH TRAIN

Warren Giles of St. Louis did 169 yards in nothing Saturday, only trying to capture himself with the rear end of the train that crossed the Missouri high school football squad to Pleasant Warren, Mo., as Stevens to Parkville, Mo., at 6:30 p.m.

And while the sixth was making the change the train passed out, leaving Warren on the station platform with a sack of fruit in his hand. And he made the train despite the handicap which applies to him and he was drawn on to the close platform by the pair who helped him to safety.
